

PRESS RELEASE – September 2014

Renate Danler has started up her own business as a Management Consultant

Her main fields of activity are conferences, culture and tourism

For seven years Renate Danler ran the Congress Centre/Kongresszentrum Hofburg in Vienna. Now she has started up her own business as management consultant. Thanks to her managing experience in tourism and the leisure-time sector, she has an excellent foundation in these special areas of consulting that could also be put to use for interim management.

She also used her brief sabbatical to gain experience in organizational and systemic consulting, giving her yet another qualification as an expert consultant. As Danler herself puts it: "Motivating people, helping them come into their own and promoting them – all of this is familiar to me from a manager's perspective. As a management consultant I offer support in important strategic and operative situations."

As a Certified Supervisory Expert she will also assume more functions as a member of the supervisory boards in corporations and as the CEO/head of foundations.
